

I am strongly against Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary.

As an American, I do not feel that an exposed breast is any more of an affront to the American system of values than Sinclair Broadcasting's attempt to force their political views on their entire viewing audience. I would like to see the FCC actively prevent this from occurring, and to be equally as adamant about preventing blatant partisanship being sent over ostensibly free airwaves as they were in responding to indecent exposure.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
